

JUVENILE JUSTICE AND YOUTH DEVELOPMENT (JJYD) POLICY BOARD

- Origin: The JJYD Policy Board was originally organized to support a grant which provided funding to foster collaboration on juvenile crime prevention projects between local agencies, including Iowa City schools. These projects are now funded by Johnson County, often serving as a valuable source for state and federal grants matching funds. The JJYD Policy Board serves in an advisory capacity to the Board of Supervisors.
- Number of Members: A maximum of 42 members. Of the 42 members, 29 can be ex-officio.
- Appointed by: The Johnson County Board of Supervisors appoints 13 members of the JJYD Policy Board, with the following supplemental qualifications:
- Seven (7) representatives from Business, Parents, Residents, and Youth;
 - Three (3) representatives from Social Service Agencies;
 - One (1) representative from Juvenile Court;
 - One (1) representative of Law Enforcement; and
 - One (1) representative from the Board of Supervisors.
- Ex-Officio Members: Ex-officio members will have all the rights and responsibilities of appointed members, except the right to vote on JJYD Policy Board matters. The ex-officio members shall be distributed among local organizations as follows:
- Up to twelve (12) government representatives:
 - One (1) from each of the following Cities: Coralville, Hills, Iowa City, Lone Tree, North Liberty, Oxford, Shueyville, Solon, Swisher, and University Heights
 - One (1) from the Iowa Department of Human Services
 - Up to nine (9) school district and higher education representatives:
 - One (1) from each of the following school districts: Clear Creek-Amana, Iowa City Community School District, Iowa Mennonite, Lone Tree, Regina, and Solon
 - One (1) from each of the following higher education institutions: Iowa State Extension, Kirkwood Community College, and University of Iowa
